ALABAMA'S ELECTION.

Later Returns Show Increased Democratic Majorities

BUT KOLB CLAIMS THE STATE.

He Asserts That the Figures Given Out Are the Result of Fraudulent Practices, and His Followers Will Decide on a Plan of Procedure.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 8.—Nearly every county thus far reported shows a heavy loss for Kolb as compared with his vote in 1892 Madison county, which in 1892 went for Kolb by 298, is given by official returns to Oates by 1,443, a change of over 1,700 votes. Lawrence, another Tennessee valley county, goes for Kolb by only 1,250, as against 2,135 before. Limestone goes for Kolb by 153, against 1,623 in 1892. Tallapoosa goes for Kolb by 600, against 2,449 in 1892. In Cherokee his majority falls off 300

Crenshaw gave Kolb 775 majority in 1892. This year it is very close. Bibb affords the same comparison. Sumter goes for Oates by over 1,500, a Democratic gain of over 1,000, and Macon for Oates by 800, a Democratic gain of over 1,500. Henry, Oates' home county, went for Kolb in 1892 by over 1,300, but this year gives Oates over 500. In Barbour county the official Democratic majority has been increased 1,326. Oates' majority will be close to 30,000.

The returns indicate a safe Democratic majority in the legislature, even without Jefferson's delegation of six, though prospects are favorable that it has gone Democratic.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 8.—Captain Kolb furnished the following statement over his signature last night:

"I have deferred making any statement to the public as to the result of the election until the total returns had been received. Up to this hour sufficient returns have been received to show that I have carried forty out of fifty-one white counties, and that I have been elected, with the entire state ticket, by a majority of not less than 25,000. This majority I claim after giving to the opposition every white county which they have carried, without reference to fraudulent modes in the nature of intimidation and bulldozing in the absence of inspectors or fixers for our side.

"Any citizen of Alabama of ordinary intelligence who will take the trouble to examine the figures as reported by the Associated Press and claimed by the opposition can at once see that it will be a physical impossibility for the ticket headed by Colonel Oates to be elected except by claiming a majority of over 25,000 from seven black belt counties having a white voting population not exceeding 12,000.

"The frauds of this year are more notorious and shameful than those of 1892. For the purpose of deceiving the public they have, to some extent, been shifted. The returns as reported from Lowndes county indicate fraud exceeding anything ever before known in the history of this state.

"In Montgomery, Bullock and Barbour the frauds are hardly less aggravated. The opposition claim Madison county by a majority of 1,443. Our strength in Madison county this year is much more strongly developed than in 1892, when we carried the county by about 400 majority.

"A conference of the candidates of our state ticket, as well as the members of our committee, has been called to meet in this city tomorrow, and at that conference a line of policy will be determined on, and the people of this state will be given an opportunity, definitely and quickly, to determine whether or not the law shall be 'master of us all' and our government be maintained in purity according to the will of the people."

At Kolb's state headquarters here some of his leaders say that Kolb will be seated by force of arms if necessary.

Dr. Hand's Diarrhœa Mixture.

"My baby is subject to severe attacks of diarrhœa. During the last sickness Dr. Hand's Diarrhœa Mixture was freely given and an immediate cure resulted. It would have required a dozen visits of a physician as on former occasions. I believe Dr. Hand's Remedies would have saved the life of the child I lost, had they been within my reach at the time of its sickness."—Mrs. F. H. Bennett, 752 New St., Camden, N. J. 25c. OMAHA'S STRIKING BUTCHERS

Cases of Intimidation and Violence Growing More Frequent.

OMAHA, Aug. 8.—The situation at South Omaha is more serious today than at any time since the butchers' strike began, and Adjutant General Gage is closely watching the angry strikers. All the packing houses are surrounded by strikers, most of whom are armed, and persons desiring to enter the plants must satisfy the guards of strikers who are located every few yards. The trade in revolvers has been rushing here for the last week. Permits have been issued to many of the men to carry guns, and each day the situation grows more serious.

Anthony Franks, a man employed at Cudahy's, was pursued by strikers last evening and fired at five times.

The executive committee of the strikers disclaim any knowledge of assaults committed by the union men. They claim all the men who went out are given strict orders not to create any disturbance whatever. The company has chosen fifteen citizens and will ask Mayor Johnson to swear them in as special policemen. The packers still claim that many more of their old men want to go back to work, but are afraid they will be assaulted

The strikers claim none of the old men have gone to work, but that on the other hand several of the men came out on Monday because they would not work for $1.50 a day.

New men are being put to work as they are needed, and the packers say that by the end of the week they will be running a full force. The hog butchers held a meeting last night, and agreed to stay out until the packers paid them the scale submitted. Warrants were issued for the arrest of C. S. Felsch, accused at the Hammond plant of destroying property, and Herman Thiele, of destroying property at the same plant by throwing stones through a window.

Cases of intimidation are being reported daily at police headquarters, and the chief's attention has been called to several cases where men have gone to the homes of those who were at work and compelled their wives to go after their husbands and take them from their work, or if they could not do that, to suffer the consequences.

Fatally Stabbed by His Son.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Henry Whitmann, the victim of his son's assault, is lying at the county hospital in a dying condition. The two boys, one aged 16 and the other 22, were taken to the hospital and identified by the dying father as his assailants. The boys, Walter and Harry, returned home after spending the night at a dance. Mr. Whitmann upbraided them for staying out so late, and the boys retaliated with angry words. From words they resorted to blows, and the father was chastising the boys in a wholesome manner when one of them plunged a knife into the old man's stomach producing a frightful wound.

Governor Waite Bitterly Denounced.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 8.—In addressing the court on behalf of General Tarsney yesterday Attorney General Engelry said: "Yesterday the governor of this state saw fit to send a guard to the doors of this hall of justice. In my opinion it was an invasion of the constitution and of civil rights, and it is an action that I, standing in the presence of this court, repudiate as I repudiate the state administration. I do not believe the officials of the state indorse such notions. We have in this state a Grover Cleveland, a Cæsar, a despot. I repudiate him."

Little Bertha Johnson Avenged.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8.—Harry Johnson, who murdered his little 4-year-old daughter, Bertha May Johnson, by drowning her in the Lehigh river on July 25, 1893, paid the penalty of his crime on the gallows here The condemned man appeared to be calm and self possessed His neck was not broken, and death resulted from strangulation. This was the first execution in the county

Fatal Explosion on the Delaware.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—The boiler of the American Dredging company's barge exploded yesterday, and a few minutes later the barge sank in the river. One of the crew, Charles Warner, is missing, and he is supposed to have been killed, while three other members of the crew and a government inspector were injured, none, it is thought, fatally.

Premier Estrup's Resignation Accepted.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 8.—King Christian has accepted the resignation of Premier Jacob Broennum Scavenius Estrup, who retires on account of old age, and has appointed Baron Reedtz-Thott, minister of foreign affairs, to be president of the council of ministers, in place of M Estrup.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rhuematism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill. had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Sdeaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, and the doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box of Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. CHARGED WITH INFANTICIDE

An Accused Physician Flees from a Coroner's Inquest to the Mountains.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Aug. 8.—J. S. Hunt, a farmer living near here, found, while working in a field, the partly decomposed remains of a male infant. An examination showed that its skull was crushed, and that there was a bullet hole through the brain. Suspicion was directed toward Dr. Warford Nixon, a physician of some prominence, living in Riegelsville, and further investigation revealed the fact that the mother of the dead child was a Miss Haystock, the daughter of Adamson Haystock, of Hunterdon county. It was also learned that Miss Haystock and Dr. Nixon had been living together, and that the physician was present when the child was born.

An inquest was held yesterday afternoon, at which Dr. Nixon testified that the child was dead when born. He was followed by others who were present at the birth, all of whom swore positively that the infant was alive, and that soon after its birth it mysteriously disappeared. As the hearing progressed the testimony pointed more and more directly toward the guilt of the physician, who finally bolted for the door during the temporary absence of the constable and made his escape, bareheaded, to the mountains, closely followed by a large party of pursuers, including the constable and coroner. The fugitive outran his pursuers, however, and is now concealed in the mountains. The coroner and his jury returned to the place of inquest and rendered a verdict holding Dr. Nixon responsible for the death of the infant.

Mine Resumption Not General.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Although the coal strike was declared off last Saturday, work was not as generally resumed in this section yesterday as was expected. The danger is that unless the miners at many of the mines go to work in a day or two several operators will consider themselves released from the discriminating clause in the agreement, and many former employes will find themselves unable to get work. In the Houtzdale district work was resumed at only three out of the twenty mines. In the Philipsburg and Osceola districts resumption was general.

Young Women as Life Savers.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Aug. 8.—During the night the full rigged Norwegian ship Catharine, Captain Stevenson, stranded on Santa Rosa Island. A terrible southeast gale was blowing at the time. Captain Broadbent, of the life saving station, with the assistance of his three young daughters and one man, hauled their apparatus nearly two miles, fired the life line and rescued the crew of the vessel. The vessel is in seven feet of water, and is rapidly going to pieces.

Canadians Fire on American Fishermen.

BUFFALO, Aug. 8.—Fishermen of this city were fired upon by Canadian officers on board the cruiser Dolphin while fishing inside of Rose's Reef. The men were in a rowboat and were pursued by the cruiser, the captain of which commanded them to stop, but they kept pulling for the shore until the bullets whizzing about their ears from Winchesters made them stop The captain searched the boat, but, finding no fish he steamed away.

Death of Consul Underwood.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—F. H. Underwood, who died at Leith, Scotland, yesterday at which place he was United States consul, has been for some years in the consular service, in which he had earned a high reputation. He was originally appointed consul at Glasgow in President Cleveland's first administration, and went out of office in July, 1889. He was appointed consul at Leith June 8, 1893.

Paris' Anarchist Trials.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The trial of the thirty anarchists charged with belonging to a band whose members are bound to robbery, incendiarism and murder, was resumed in the Seine assize court. The questions put to the prisoners at the trial and likewise their answers to questions show that proof of their complicity in an anarchist campaign is surely closing around them.

Trifled with Her Affections.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 8.—Miss May Livingston, one of Crown Point's belles yesterday began a breach of promise suit against Professor George W. Christie, of Holbart, placing damages at $10,000. The plaintiff alleges that the professor has trifled with her affections for the past two years Sensational developments are expected.

Murdered in a Quarrel Over a Gun.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—W. H. Trigg, a canal boatman, was shot and killed by Frank Williams, colored, at Georgetown. A dispute arose between the two men about the ownership of a shotgun. Williams finally seized the gun and shot Trigg in the abdomen, killing him. Williams was arrested.

A FRUITLESS CAUCUS.

No Action Taken at the Meeting of House Democrats.

NO SURRENDER TO THE SENATE.

Speaker Crisp and Chairman Wilson Prevent the Adoption of a Resolution Which Would Have Made Necessary the Acceptance of the Senate Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Chairman Wilson and his associate house tariff conferrees scored a victory yesterday when the house Democratic caucus, called with a view of terminating the tariff struggle by instructing or advising the house conferrees, adjourned without taking any action. The effect of this was to leave the house conferrees to proceed as they saw best. The friends of Mr Wilson could have passed the Livingston resolution, expressing confidence, but there was no desire on the part of the supporters of the conferrees to take this course The sentiment was general that the movement inaugurated to bring about an acceptance on the senate bill had resulted in materially strengthening the opposition to the senate bill.

The proceedings opened by the introduction of a resolution by Mr. Bynum providing for a joint caucus of Democratic senators and representatives on Friday next in case the conferrees have not by that time reached an agreement.

In his explanatory statement, which was a brief one, Mr Bynum said that although there had been a clamor from a part of the press for the house bill, he believed that the overwhelming sentiment of the country was for the best possible bill that could be agreed upon. For himself, he preferred the senate bill to no bill, and as he interpreted the wish of the party it was for a tariff bill and prompt action. He had no sympathy with the stand taken by some members that it would be better to retain the McKinley bill than substitute the senate bill for it.

Chairman Wilson commented upon it as an unfortunate circumstance that at a crucial point in the negotiations of the conferrees, and at the last critical stage of the conference as well, movements had been started to hold a caucus over the heads of the house conferrees, so to speak. The house bill had seemed to be acceptable to the country, he said, while the senate bill had not. He believed that if the house conferrees did their duty, and the house its duty, that a bill honorable for both house and senate and acceptable to the party and the people would be the result. Such a result would not be brought about, he said, by any action that would notify the senate that if it would hold out to a given date the house would instruct its conferrees to recede.

Mr. Livingston (Ga.) proposed a substitute for the Bynum resolution expressing the confidence of the house in its conferrees and leaving the matter entirely in their hands. Then followed a discussion of the position held by the senate and the prospects of an agreement. Mr. Breckinridge, of the ways and means committee, rose to correct the impression which might be maintained, he said, if not corrected, that any ultimatum from the senate had been received by the house conferrees and opposed by them.

One of the Louisiana members argued that speedy action was necessary; that it was plain the senate would not yield, and proceeded to pay a high tribute to Senator Mills as a pioneer in tariff reform, and said that this conspicuous tariff reformer had personally assured him that it was the senate bill or nothing, and unless the house soon recognized this all tariff legislation would fail.

Mr. Cooper (Ind.) said senators around Mr. Mills had been trying to create the impression that nothing but the senate bill could pass, and that this might have its effect on Mr. Mills. These claims were being made by the senators under cover. Mr. Cooper said that now that the American people had been informed of these senators they had been publicly pilloried. They would have surrendered already, he said, if the caucus movements had not given them hope that the house was weakening.

During this discussion Mr. Bynum offered to amend his resolution to extend the time within which it was designed to being about action by the conferrees.

Something of a sensation was stirred by the forging to the front of Speaker Crisp when the general debate was well under way. The speech of the speaker was temperate, but very forcible, and its logic was so irresistible that at its conclusion Mr Bynum, the author of the resolution, withdrew his motion. The speaker declared that it was and should be the purpose of the Democrats of the house, as Democrats, to redeem the pledges they had made to the people He deprecated the passage of any resolution at this time. The senate had not withdrawn its support from the senate conferrees, and the house should stand by its representatives. No vote of confidence was needed, while on the other hand the passage of Mr. Bynum's resolution would be a virtual surrender He gave it as his opinion that the conferrees could reach an agreement in a couple of weeks at most, but they should not be harassed by a "club law" from their own house.

The proposition for a joint caucus of the house and senate in case no agreement was reached, the speaker characterized as an abandonment Pass a resolution to that effect, said he, and you serve notice on the senate that you want to treat with them If you do that you might as well hold a joint caucus tomorrow

Mr Bynum suggested that he would be glad to withdraw his resolution if Mr Wilson would rise and say that an agreement was in sight Mr Wilson gave no apparent recognition to Mr Bynum The action of the chairman excited no little comment, as it was taken to mean a declination to have any controversy with Mr. Bynum Inquiries were made regarding the status of negotiations upon sugar, coal and iron, but no definite information was forthcoming. Finally Mr. Bynum withdrew his resolution, explaining that he was satisfied with the representations made, and on motion of Speaker Crisp the caucus adjourned.

The tariff conference was entirely subordinated to the house caucus, and was devoid of interesting features. The conferrees had two brief sessions during the day, and discussed the coal and iron ore questions, besides reverting to the sugar schedule. The talk, however, served to no purpose, except to emphasize the fact that the disagreement is still unbroken, and that very little if any progress is being made. Senate conferrees have re-expressed their conviction many times during the past week that if an agreement is not soon reached the situation demands the reporting of another disagreement.

THEY DIDN'T LIKE CORBETT.

The English Public Refused to Patronize "Gentleman Jim."

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Florrie West, the soubrette of the Corbett "Gentleman Jim" company, returned to New York yesterday in the cabin of the Elbe from Southampton. She said she paid her own passage because she would not travel in the second cabin of the Ethiopia, which she declares is a cattle ship. The other members of the company returned on the Ethiopia and their names are on the second cabin list.

"The sending of the members of the company back on a second rate steamship, from an obscure port, to get the advantage of the cheaper rates is the best evidence that the Corbett company did not do good business," is what Miss West said. "Corbett," continued the pretty soubrette, "made a mistake as to the English public. He thought the people there would dance attendance on him, as they do at home, but he was mistaken. The English public were disgusted with the idea of a pugilist appearing at the high class theatres. They did not, therefore patronize 'Gentleman Jim' liberally.

"The sporting fraternity, also, did not take to Corbett kindly because he considered himself too much of a gentleman to associate with them. They invited him to one of their clubs. They thought he was no better man than Charley Mitchell and when he snubbed them by refusing their invitation they quietly sent him to Coventry, as they call it over there when they boycott a man."

THE WAR IN THE ORIENT

The Falling of Chinese Rivers Will Prevent a Japanese Invasion

TIENTSIN, Aug. 8.—A Chinese cruiser has captured a Japanese trading bark and taken her to Taku All pilots have been warned officially that they must not guide Japanese vessels nor give them any information as to the waters and coast.

The rivers are falling steadily, in consequence of the drought. It will soon be impossible for the Japanese to make a raid up the Pei Ho toward Pekin.

A copy of a Japanese edict issued since the declaration of war has been received by the Central News correspondent in Shanghai, saying the local authorities will be held responsible for the lives and properties of Chinese subjects remaining in their several districts.

The Russian officials in Shanghai say that if Russian trade suffers too severely from the war Russia will interfere. Russia's movements are watched very closely by Japan, owing to to the report of a Russo-Chinese entente.

The weather on the China sea is so rough that all smaller vessels have been driven into port The Japanese cruisers are supposed to be concentrated at Chemulpo.

Shocking Wife Murder and Suicide.

CHICAGO, Aug 8.—Henry Russell, colored, yesterday afternoon murdered his wife, Carrie, by cutting her throat with a razor He then ended his life by slashing his own throat The scene of the tragedy was in the building in the rear of 6 South Sheldon street The couple lived on the second floor About 2 o'clock Russell commenced quarreling with his wife In a short time the woman was heard screaming, and several men who went to her assistance were driven out by Russell, who threatened to kill them if they came back. The police were notified, but before they arrived Russell had cut his wife's throat from ear to ear, and then taking up the dying woman in his arms he brought her to the window and hurled her into the yard He stood at the window with a bloody razor in his hand and looked down upon the apparently dead form of his wife. Before any one could enter the house and seize him the desperate man drew the razor across his own throat.

Browne's 'Wealers Capture a Train.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug 8.—Thirty members of Carl Browne's army of Coxeyites stole the West Jersey freight train at May's Landing and threatened the train crew with violence if they were molested. At McKee City the railroad men attempted to oust the hoboes and were roughly handled and driven off. When the train stopped at Pleasantville all but three of the men left the cars. The trio were arrested, arraigned in the police court and fined $25 each and sentenced to serve thirty days in the county prison There was not a cent among the three Murdered by Her Paramour.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—Ethel Le Roy, a dissolute woman was murdered in a shocking manner on O'Farrell street. After a desperate struggle Frank Larrabee, whose mistress she had been, overpowered her and with a razor cut her throat In the terrible struggle the woman's cheeks, neck and breast were frightfully slashed Pushing the dying woman from him he drew the razor across his throat, in an attempt to end his own life The woman bled to death, but Larrabee will live.

TERRORS OF THE ARCTIC

Details of the Loss of the Steamer Ragnvald Jarl.

BOTTOLFSEN'S PERILOUS TRAMP.

He and Two Companions Traveled Two Hundred and Thirty Miles, Dragging an Aluminum Boat Behind Them, to Bring News of Walter Wellman's Expedition.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 8.—Captain Bottolfsen, who brought to this place the news of the loss of the Wellman Polar expedition steamer Ragnvald Jarl, gives, in an interview, further details of the adventures of the Wellman party. He says that the expedition reached Walden Island on May 17, when the pack ice was becoming troublesome. Mr. Wellman and his party started north on sledges on May 24 On May 28 the screwing of the ice commenced in real earnest. Near the steamer were icebergs which towered as high as the yard arms of the vessel's masts While the crew were drinking their afternoon cup of coffee on that day the steamer was suddenly crushed by the ice as if it were a match box. The water rushed in with terrific force, and in a few minutes the vessel was a complete wreck The crew in the meantime had escaped to the shore

The crew had been occupied for several days previous in bringing provisions and the aluminum boats ashore They were now obliged to take shelter in a great dog kennel until they were able to build a hut from the wreckage of the steamer. Through a hole which had been made in the side of the wrecked vessel the party were enabled to save a quantity of coal and other useful articles. An express party was sent after Mr Wellman, and overtook him and his companions at Marten Island Wellman, Dodge and two others returned to Walden Island and held a council. Captain Bottolfsen, Webfeldt and a sailor volunteered to go and seek for sealing vessels to the southward.

Mr. Wellman resumed his journey northward on May 31, but Bottolfsen and his party were unable to start on their trip, owing to the heavy pack ice, and were still detained at the island on June 23, when Sando, Iversen, Winship and Heyerdahl returned to Mr. Wellman, owing to lack of provisions and to troubles in regard to ice and water. On June 27 Captain Bottolfsen and his party started southward in search of sealers, hauling behind them a twelve foot aluminum boat. They passed four terrible weeks of storm and heavy snow, sometimes hauling their boat, and sailing or rowing where there was open water. In this way they traveled 230 miles along the Spitzbergen islands. They were compelled to throw away nearly all their extra clothing and much of their equipment, as the boat was overloaded. Their passage across Heelopen strait was particularly difficult and dangerous. All of the party were wet to the skin, and the cold being intense, their sufferings were most severe. The cold on the nights of July 10 and 12 was simply awful.

In a hut at Mosset Bay they found and repaired an old gig. On July 13 they tried to cross Wijde bay, but were obliged to return, owing to the fog and ice. They made another start on the 15th, but the ice proved to dense, and they were obliged to leave the gig and proceed, hauling the aluminum boat. Seven Norwegian sealers were seen east of the Norse islands, but failed to respond to the party's signals. At Norse bay they found Nordensjold's hut, where a provision depot was maintained by a Tromsoe skipper named Sociazon. The party had to take their boat around Welcome Point. On July 19 they were taken aboard the steamer Mallygeu, Captain Pedersen. Heyerdahl was landed at Dane's Island to join Professor Oyen, who was well, but still declined to leave the island.

Captain Bottolfsen says that during the journey along the coast his party were able to shoot a few Polar bears and reindeer He says that Captain Pedersen proved a splendid icemaster Bottolfsen is high in his praise of aluminum boats. The dogs he had with him proved useless, becoming sorefooted and had to be shot. He says that Sando and his companions left Wellman June 13, six miles east of Platen, on his way to Ribes Island. All his party were well. He says it is probable that the two engineers and a stocker who were left at Walden Island will be rescued by sealers as soon as the ice and weather becomes favorable enough for them to proceed eastward.

Carina Wins the Queen's Cup.

COWES, Aug 8.—The race for the queen's cup yesterday, in the Royal Yacht Squadron regatta, was won by Admiral Mantagu's Carina, on time allowance, though Emperor William's Meteor crossed the finish line first. The Britannia crossed the line before the gun was fired, and was therefore disqualified. The Vigilant, not being a member of the squadron, was unable to compete for the queen's cup.

The Doctors Endorse It.

At a regular meeting of the Genesee County (N. Y.) Medical Society, the physicians of the county passed a vote of thanks for samples of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which had been presented to the society, and said that they recognized the remedy as being adapted to a large class of summer diseases. Physicians everywhere recommend this excellent medicine, especially to their lady patients. Sold by all druggists for $1.00 per bottle.

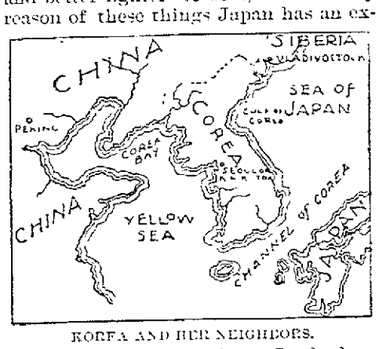
SHIPS AND SOLDIERS.

THE FIGHTING FORCES OF THE CHINESE AND JAPANESE EMPIRES.

Some Say the Celestials Can Muster a Million Men of Arms on Short Notice. Japan's Army Smaller, but Better Drilled. Their Navies Analyzed.

It seems to be generally conceded that, so far as mere numbers go, the government of the Celestial Empire can count on many more fighting men than can that of the land of the chrysanthemum in the war that seems now to have really been begun over the Hermit Kingdom, as Korea is often termed. On the other hand, it is claimed that the Japanese soldiers are better drilled and better equipped than are the Chinese, and better fighters to boot, and that by reason of these things Japan has an excellent chance of winning. In the long run, however, say the students of the history of these oriental nations, China will hold her own, and more. Her population is so enormous as to be practically inexhaustible, and her resources are great almost beyond computation. She can therefore put up an excellent fight, even after suffering what seems to be a crushing defeat and long after the fighting men and the material resources of her island rivals have given out. Unless Russia or some other occidental power interferes, say these students, China's hold on Korea, though it may be broken for a time, will be renewed and will continue.



KOREA AND HER NEIGHBORS.

This view of the probabilities seems to be amply borne out by the facts of history. There have always been jealousies between China and Japan, and the two empires have almost always been at loggerheads over Korea. A little more than 300 years ago—in 1592, to be exact—they had a big war over the little peninsula. Japan won every battle but one and completely invested the land. For several years Korea was tributary to the victors, but China's population being so great she was able to send new relays of fighting men year after year, and the contest became such a drain upon the resources of Japan that when the emperor under whose reign the war was begun died the Japanese troops were withdrawn, and Korea has ever since paid tribute to China. It is understood that the Japanese authorities fully realize the truth in this matter, and that therefore their disavowal of any design of maintaining control of the peninsula is sincere, their object in bringing on war being merely to protect their treaty rights in Korean ports.

The Chinese army available on short notice numbers almost 1,000,000 men. There is, first, the division known as "the eight banners," including Manchoos, Mongols and descendants of the Chinese who in 1644 joined their fortunes to those of the invaders, 323,800 men in all, of whom 100,000 are understood to be annually reviewed by the emperor himself. The "Ying Ping," or national army, numbers about 656,000 officers and men all told, the total forces of the united armies thus being 979,800. Not all of this immense force can be said to be active. Captain Norman describes the active army in detail. The army of Manchuria, 70,000 men, is divided into two corps, with headquarters at Tsitsihar and Mukden. This army has the Manser rifle and Krupp fieldpieces.

The army of the center, with headquarters at Kalgan, has 50,000 men, which may be doubled in time of war, and is armed with Remington rifles. The Turkestan army, large, but how large Captain Norman does not state, could not be utilized in a foreign war, probably because it is constantly employed maintaining order in the western provinces. The territorial army of "braves" numbers 200,000 in time of peace and may be increased to 600,000 in time of war.

There are those who claim that these estimates of China's military strength are too high. For instance, a German officer of rank, who entered the Chinese service during the Franco-Chinese war and labored hard to improve the efficiency of the army, places its total effective force at about 500,000. The Chinese emperor, unlike occidental potentates, says this German, had no personal relations with the army. In fact, he regards it as an inferior service. In the years of the Taiping rebellion it was different. Then the soldier was by all odds the most important man of every neighborhood. If he were a private, he drew only 2 cents a day pay, but the government furnished him with his house, and the house had a garden, the tillage of which would furnish plenty of food. In those days the soldier was practically a policeman, and he was numerous enough in every province to put down all traces of insurrection.

When war with an outside power—the French—came, in 1883, all this was changed. No longer could the soldier live in a house and till a garden furnished by the government, no longer could he be a family man and policeman first and a soldier afterward. The consequent change has brought about a great lack of enthusiasm on the part of the soldier, largely because of his having to give up the house and garden, but it has also brought much more efficient arms, for the flintlock and spear have been replaced by rapid fire breech-loading rifles, and there has been some attempt made to introduce discipline.

The Japanese army is organized on a uniform conscription system. All males must serve for seven years, the period of service beginning at the age of 20. Three years are spent in the active branch of the army and the other four in the reserves. After quitting the army of reserve they become members of the landwehr for five years. All men between the ages of 17 and 40 not members of the active, the reserve or the landwehr army are members of the landsturm and may be called on in emergency. In 1892 the active army was composed of the imperial guard and six divisions. The guard numbers 6,207 officers and men, 40 field guns and 558 horses. The six divisions are: Infantry, 33,925 officers and men; cavalry, 1,302 officers and men and 1,146 horses; artillery, 5,135 officers and men, 240 field and 120 mountain pieces and 1,655 horses; engineers, 2,975 officers and men, train, 2,108 officers and men and 1,746 horses and miscellaneous service. The total of the active army on a peace footing, including the miscellaneous service, is 66,103 officers and men, 314 field guns, 156 mountain guns and 8,791 horses. There are besides a thousand or so gendarmes, 3,000 or 4,000 "yeomanry" and about 2,000 officers and students attached to the military schools.

The reserve numbers 99,554 and the landwehr 99,176, the total effective force, exclusive of the landsturm, that could be counted on in case of war being not far from 273,000 men. This number could undoubtedly and probably in case of extended hostilities would be greatly increased by some system of volunteering or conscription. The Japanese make their own small arms, ammunition and ordnance.

Probably the navies of the two empires will play quite as important a part in the drama as the armies. China's navy has been added to greatly during the last decade and a half. It now includes one first class, one second class and three third class battleships, nine vessels for port defense, nine second class, 12 third class and 35 lower class cruisers, two first class, 26 second class and 13 third class torpedo boats, besides two small vessels of divided into the north coast squadron, the Fuchau squadron, the Shanghai flotilla and the Canton flotilla. The largest ships in the Chinese fleet were built in European yards, but some of the torpedo cruisers, gunboats and dispatch boats are products of the imperial yards at Fuchau.

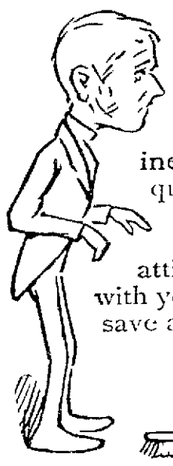
The Japanese fleet has been described as a "purely defensive force of the mobile character without coast defense vessels." The vessels are five armored cruisers, nine second class cruisers of between 2,000 and 5,000 tons each; 22 third class cruisers, 15 of which have a speed of 10 knots and upward; one first class torpedo boat and 40 second class. The admiralty department of the Japanese administration is counted of great importance. The principal dockyard is at Yoko-uka, the naval school is at Tokyo, and there are two naval districts, at the head of each of which is a vice minister subject to the naval minister at Tokyo.

The fastest boats in the Japanese navy are the Yoshino and a new ship yet unnamed both of steel and capable of making 23 knots each. The new boat is set down as [illegible] at indefinitely as "building." Whether she is nearly completed or not I cannot say. The Yoshino is 550 feet in length, of 46 feet and 6 inches beam, and with a displacement of about 4,000 tons. Both the Yoshino and the new ship are Japan built, and so is the Akitsushima, a vessel of 19 knots speed. The armament of all the 22 principal ships of the Japanese navy is said to be excellent.

The Lai Yuan, the Chinese ship of which a picture is given with this article, is a double bottomed steel ship carrying compound armor, of good speed and excellent armament. None of the Chinese ships is as fast as the fastest of the Japanese, 16½ knots, the rate attainable by the Kuangting, built at the Fuchau yards, being the maximum reported speed.

Korea, where most of the fighting will be done, figures but little in speculations as to the outcome of the fight between her big neighbors. The Korean army numbers not more than 5,000 men, stationed at Seoul. They have been drilled by American instructors and native officers, and two of the regiments are equipped with Remington rifles. A battery of Gatling and one of Krupp guns is also stationed at Seoul, and a force of 500 cavalry has lately been organized, armed with carbines and swords. Theoretically there are 1,200,000 men in Korea that may be called upon in case of necessity; but, in fact, not one in 100 of them could be made available if called upon. The Korean navy is like the snakes of Ireland.



No Wonder He Dreads It,

if his house is cleaned in the old-fashioned, tearing-up way. Why can't a man's wife use Pearline for cleaning house, and let him keep comfortable? That's all she needs—Pearline and water—to make it an easy thing (and a quick one,) both for herself and for everybody around her.

Everything in the house, from cellar to attic, can be cleaned best with Pearline. Besides, with your paint and wood-work and such things, you'll save a lot of wear that comes from useless scrubbing.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 410 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson: I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

A KNIFE

in the hand of a Surgeon gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that

RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting.

STRICTURE of the Urethra, Passage is also restored without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

HE WAS A HUSTLER.

The Opportunity Was a Golden One, and He Hastened to Grasp It.

When Major General Schofield went to Keokuk, Ia., and married one of the belles of that town, Miss Kilbourne, an amusing incident occurred which Arthur Clarke, business manager of John Drew, the comedian, enjoys telling about. It appears that Mr. Clarke's father is editor and proprietor of Keokuk's leading paper, The Gate City, and in his counting room he has a particularly energetic Hebrew, by name Joe Klein. Joseph is a hustler in every sense of the word, and the day is bleak indeed when he gets left. He heard of the approaching wedding of Miss Kilbourne with the distinguished officer, and early on the morning of the date set for the happy event he called at the Kilbourne homestead, rang the doorbell and inquired for Mrs. Kilbourne, mother of the bride. He was informed by the servant who answered his ring that Mrs. Kilbourne was very much engaged at the time, but he insisted that he must see her on very important business. In a moment she came half way down the front stairs. She knew Mr. Klein very well, as people always know each other in small towns, and when she saw him at the door she said:

"I can't see you now, Joe. I'm dressing for the wedding. Call another time."

"But I can't," said Mr. Klein. "I want you to present me to Major General Schofield. I must meet him."

"That is impossible, Joe," said Mrs. Kilbourne. "The general is dressing for the church." But the soldier had overheard the controversy from an upper landing, and rather than create trouble he came down and was duly presented.

"General Schofield," began Klein impressively, "do you realize that you are about to take from us one of the fairest flowers we have in Keokuk? Do you know that when she goes hence with you she will long for news of her old neighbors? In order that she may be really made happy by these tidings I ask you now to place your honored name upon the subscription list of The Gate City, which is the best paper in Iowa. Our rates are $8 for the daily per annum and $1.50 for the weekly. Think of your young bride" And there were tears in Klein's voice as he pleaded for recognition.

"Mr. Klein," said the general after regarding the business manager with undisguised admiration for several minutes: "I do not hesitate to proclaim that you are a wonder. You deserve success. Come in, and we will have a bottle of wine together. I will not subscribe for your daily, but you may put me down for your $1.50 weekly," and The Weekly Gate City now finds its way from Keokuk to General Schofield's household with great regularity.—Chicago Times.

The Bear and the Umbrella.

How much danger is there to the pound in a wild black bear when you meet him in his haunts accidentally and at close quarters? Mrs. C. F. Latham, wife of mine host at Oak Lodge, on the Indian river peninsula (Brevard county, Fla.), was returning from the beach alone and armed only with an umbrella. When just a quarter of a mile from this very porch, she heard the rustling of some animal coming toward her through the saw palmettos.

Thinking it must be a raccoon, she quickly picked up a chunk of palmetto wood and held it ready to whack Mr. Coon over the head the instant he emerged. All at once, with a mighty rustling, out stepped a big black bear within six feet of her! The surprise was mutual and profound. Naturally Mrs. Latham was scared, but not out of her wits, and she decided that to run would be to invite pursuit and possibly attack. She stood her ground and said nothing, and the bear rose on his hind legs to get a better look at her, making two or three feints in her direction with his paws.

Feeling that she must do something, Mrs. Latham pointed her umbrella at the bear and quickly opened and closed it two or three times. "Woof!" said the bear. Turning about, he plunged into the palmettos and went crashing away, while the lady ran homeward as fast as she could go. So much for the "savage and aggressive" disposition of the black bear.—W. T. Hornaday in St. Nicholas.

Solid Emery Wheels.

In the production of solid emery wheels the best cement that can be employed is one that binds the emery together with that degree of strength which will resist the centrifugal strain due to the high speed at which emery wheels cut best—about 5,000 feet speed per minute. It must not soften by frictional heat nor glaze nor burst nor become brittle and break with cold, nor must it hold the cutting grains until they are too dull to cut nor release them so readily as to waste away the wheel too fast. It must be capable of being thoroughly mixed evenly with the grain emery, so that the wheel may not have either hard or soft spots and be out of balance, and must also be capable of being tempered to suit different kinds of metal or work. Great care and skill are required in the matter of selecting only pure and strong chemicals for these cements.—Cassier's Magazine.

So broad is the scope of modern charity that in many cases, particularly in Europe, it has taken forms fanciful if not absurd. London has three or four refuges for lost dogs. These establishments are kept up by legacies and donations.

"Xmas" is often written instead of Christmas, and the authority for so doing is that X is simply the initial letter of the Greek word for Christ.

"Remedies for toothache, my friend," said a philosopher, "will be found to afford instant relief in every case but yours."

AN ALBANY MIRACLE.

SOMETHING BESIDES POLITICS HAS STRUCK THE CAPITAL CITY THIS TIME.

A Paralytic Walks?—New Theory of Nerve Building Successfully Tried—Very Satisfactory Results, Indeed.

From the Albany Journal.

Twenty years ago, David A. Van Dusen, of 30 North Knox street, this city, came from the south part of Albany. For six years he served on the police force of this city, after which he entered the service of the New York Central railroad as a fireman, running between here and Syracuse. The account of Mr. Van Dusen's career since he came to Albany has never before been published.

The public rarely gets an insight into any of the striking surgical operations of the medical fraternity, nor into the details of their serious cases. A physician is a sphynx. He cannot unbosom himself nor his train of reasoning to the uninitiated. Occasionally, however, a case is reported which opens the eyes of the public to the great strides which are being made in this important science. The case of Van Dusen is such a one. Four years ago he was taken with a malady which seemed to baffle medical skill. The best of Albany's physicians were called in consultation. The list included such men as Drs. Van Derveer, Hale, Carrol, Murray, Milbanke, Shutter, McKown and Ward, a formidable array of talent, indeed. Their diagnosis was "cancer of the liver," and this was probably correct. The patient was flat on his back for nine months, developing symptoms in the meantime which required the utmost skill and attention: to wit, spells of bleeding at the mouth, which were of long duration and very profuse; the greatest of pains in the region of the stomach, liver, kidneys and heart; and a total paralysis of the bowels and lower limbs. The bleeding above referred to continued at intervals of a few weeks, up to last May. On one occasion it lasted for eight hours, and a washbasin full of blood came from the patient. All these conditions would seem to prove the correctness of the first diagnosis, that he had cancer of the liver, or at least ulceration of that organ, the paralysis being the result of the extreme nerve derangement caused thereby. But can a cancer of the liver be cured? Can paralysis be cured?

Recognizing the hopelessness of these two maladies, the recovery of Van Dusen demanded the investigation which we have made, and from him our reporter has obtained the above facts. Mr. Van Dusen's endorsement of the methods employed to effect his cure was emphatic and positive. He ascribes it to Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, which is a Canadian preparation, though now sold by all druggists in this country, and which has done such marvelous things of late in the severer nerve and blood diseases. He began taking these pills last May, since which time he has not had a bleeding attack, his paralysis is almost entirely removed (he walks two or three miles a day now); his complexion has lost its saffron hue and is again rosy, and he looks well and eats heartily, He has taken twenty-three boxes of the pills.

Now, taking it for granted that the diagnosis of this case, as given above by the most eminent physicians, was correct, and coupling the same to Mr. Van Dusen's unqualified statement given our reporter as to the cause of his cure, the question arises: Is there not a pertinent and forceful suggestion here for all sufferers from nerve diseases? If paralysis is curable, will not the minor nerve diseases yield more readily to the same treatment? It is a suggestion which merits the attention of the public and the profession, and this case should be investigated to that end. Mr. Van Dusen may be found at the address given in the first part of this article.

S. C. Bradt, the popular druggist of 55 and 57 Washington avenue, is an uncle of the patient and fully corroborated all the facts stated herewith.

An analysis of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus's dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness, either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50) by addressing Dr. Williams's Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., or Brockville, Ontario.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary relief. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power, with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient. The druggists all sell it.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1894.

The News from Alabama grows better and better. Later returns show heavy Democratic gains in the central and southern portions of the State and Oates, the Democratic candidate for Governor, will have from 25,000 to 30,000 majority.

We hear but little about American tin and tin plate factories, nowadays, but the tariff is getting in its work, and every consumer of tin is paying his share for the encouragement of this industry. The price of tin plate, which was $4.40 a box in June, 1890, had risen to $5 40 a box in June, 1894.

Experts, who have examined the counterfeits made by the Connecticut gang whom the Secret Service detectives have just captured, say that the work on some of the counterfeits is better than on the genuine bills, and that the principal difference between the counterfeit notes with the vignette of Webster and the genuine bills is that the vignettee on the genuine bill is poorly executed, and that the counterfeiter failed to reproduce the defects.

Although the caucus of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives adjourned without formal action the speeckes made by Chairman Wilson and Speaker Crisp, and the plainly manifested temper of the majority materially strengthened the position of the House conferees and the caucus proved a bjomerang to the handful of conservatives who are willing to concede anything in order to get the tariff question out of the way.

The number of immigrants who arrived in this country during the fiscal year ending June 30th, was 311,404, against 497,396 in the preceding year. This is the lowest immigration in any year since 1879, when only 177,826 foreigners cast in their lot with us. The hard times and the difficulty of obtaining employment here have been the principal reasons for the decline of immigration, but other causes have been the stricter inspection of immigrants and the diversion of the tide of emigration to South America where several states offer to settlers fertile lands at nominal cost.

Attorney General Hancock has solved the muddle made in the game laws by Mr. Messiter's amendment which was designed to permit the killing of deer in Sullivan county during the month of October, but which was so clumsily drawn that it shortened the open season in the whole State by a month and a half. The Attorney General says that the intent of the amendment was that it should apply only to Sullivan county and he is so clear on this point that he takes the responsibility of saying that it does not affect the general game law. Deer hunters will be grateful to Mr. Hancock for the interpretation he puts on the law, but it is establishing a dangerous precedent when the Attorney General assumes to say that a law, which says one thing in explicit terms, means something entirely different.

The presence of three secret service detectives at Gray Gables, who watch carefully every one who approaches the house, and who follow Mrs. Cleveland and the children whenever they leave the family residence, is believed to be due to threatening letters received by the President from Anarchists, Socialists and cranks, who have declared their intention to get even with him for his action in ordering United States troops to Chicago during the strike trouble by striking at him through his family. It is a new experience for this country to have the wife and children of the President guarded, but the spread of anarchy and socialism and the fear of the crimes that are committed in the name of liberty and humanity make necessary in this land of liberty the same precautions taken in monarchical Europe.

The issuing of an alternative writ of mandamus against the city of New York, requiring it to pay to the State Controller $679,319 25, its share of the State Care tax, has directed public attention in the city to the folly of maintaining its own insane and paying half the cost of maintaining those of the other counties of the State. The investigation of alleged abuses in the management of the New York city asylums is also being conducted by the Lunacy Commissioners more with a view to creating a public sentiment that will demand the surrender of the asylums to State control than with a view to the correction of evils by the present management. It is only a question of time when New York and Kings county, as a means of protection from double taxation, will accept State care for their insane, and when they do this the annual tax for the support of the insane, instead of being $1,300,000, as now, will not be less than $2,500,000, and the rural counties, whose representatives were persuaded to vote for State care by the assurance that it would save them money, since over half the cost would be saddled on New York and Kings counties, which were exempted from the provisions of the law, will find themselves helpless victims of one of the most stupendous bunco games on record.

GORMAN & CO. FORCING THE FIGHT

The Tariff Dispute to Be Brought to a Crisis—The Senate Programme—A Sanguine Conferee.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Before the conferees on the tariff bill met this morning, Messrs. Gorman, Vest, Jones and Smith held a conference and as a result of this conference it is said the present condition of affairs will be brought to a speedy crisis. It is said the end cannot be postponed longer than to-morrow. When the Senate, met, to-day, there was a number of consultations between Senators on both sides of the chamber and it was evident that something important was on the tapis.

There is talk that the Senate conferees are to be discharged from further consideration of the Tariff bill, and it is said the Senate will then dispose of two conference reports on pending appropriation bills and adopt resolutions for final adjournment, leaving the Tariff bill suspended.

When the conferees adjourned for lunch one of their number said there were good prospects of an agreement to-day or to-morrow.

A CAR THROUGH BENTON AVENUE.

Not on Rails But on the Natural Roadway by Electric Power—First Trip on the Line to Midway.

The first electric car passed through Benton avenue yesterday afternoon. As was briefly stated, yesterday, it was car No. 3. It started from Wickham avenue shortly after 2 o'clock, with Capt. Rockwell at the motor and Brad Decker at the trolley rope. There were on board at the start besides those mentioned, President J. C Hinchliffe, Vice-President M. J. Wightman, Secretary E. G. Wightman, of the Traction Company, Alderman Ludington, ex-Supervisor Gabe Tuthill, and representatives of the city papers, but by the time Benton avenue was reached the number was greatly increased.

The news that the car would start during the afternoon had spread rapidly, and a crowd was assembled in Benton avenue to see the car go through.

A team of horses was in waiting to haul the car over the space where the tracks were not laid, but the officers decided to first try the experiment of running the car over the ground with electric power from the trolley wire which had been strung across the gap To facilitate this a wire was attached to the truck of the car, the other end being fastened to the end of one of the rails on the east side of the gap.

The crowd got out, Capt Rockwell turned on the current, and the car moved forward notwithstanding that one of the wheels sank several inches deep into the fresh earth of the trench dug for the ground wire on the evening previous. The wheels struck the ends of the rails on the east side, squarely mounting them, and would have passed on toward Mechanictown without a stop if the brake had not been applied.

Captain Rockwell remarked with evident satisfaction: "It's the first time that trick was ever done."

Many residents of Benton avenue were in the crowd watching the experiment, among them being Hon. Luther R. Marsh, one of the leaders in the opposition to the road in that street.

Capt. Rockwell got off the car, walked up to Mr. Marsh and gave him an invitation to take a ride on the first car to Midway, but Mr. Marsh courteously declined.

By this time all available standing room on the car was occupied with men and boys, but with its load of nearly one hundred persons the car moved off and made the run to the Mechanicstown bridge in just fifteen minutes.

Residents along the line came out and cheered the car or waved hats and handkerchiefs in token of their pleasure at seeing it. At the glove factory at Mechanicstown all the employes came out and gave the car a hearty greeting.

The return trip was made to Main street depot in fourteen minutes, and no attempt to get up a high rate of speed was made, as the the trip was merely to test the working of the line.

Like every other section of the road built by this company it worked to perfection.

On some portions of the road it will be necessary to move some of the telegraph poles, which lean over the roadway uncomfortably near the top of the cars; also to trim off a few branches from trees that would interfere with the pleasure of passengers.

All the work necessary to complete the line from Mechanictown through the ravine to the river will probably be completed this evening.

Contractor Brown expects to have the bridge over the river completed by Saturday night, and if so the road will land its passengers in the park on Sunday.

It has been reported that the objectors on Benton avenue, rather than submit to the annoyance of a transfer of passengers, had given their permission for the laying of the tracks over the gap in the street, but this is not true, and when cars are running regularly passengers will be transferred on the avenue as was originally announced.

The car made several trips, last evening, and, this morning, took the track and park laborers down to Mechanictown.

This afternoon, the company began running cars regularly to Mechanictown every half hour, and passengers will be carried hereafter as far as the line is completed.

The fare is five cents, but the tickets used on the city line will not be accepted on the Midway line.

A Night Blooming Cereus.

This is the season when the queen of cactuses, the night blooming cereus, delights the housewife who has spent many hours in its care with its beautiful and fragrant blossoms.

Mrs. B. B. Williams is the owner of one of these plants, which began, to bloom Monday night. A number of her neighbors and friends were permitted to see the plant in blossom.

Lost a Gold Watch.

Last night, Mr. J. H. Wallick, while driving back a colt that had escaped from his stable on West Main street, lost a gold watch. He missed the time piece before retiring and went out to look for it, but it had doubtless been picked up by some else, for it would easily have been seen under the arc light where it is supposed to have been lost.

OBITUARY.

Henry W. Chandler.

Henry W. Chandler died at his residence, No. 3 Linden avenue, at 7 o'clock, this morning. The immediate cause of death was enlargement of the liver, although Mr. Chandler had been failing for several years.

Deceased was a son of Nathaniel and Agnes Chandler, and was born at Unionville, July 23, 1817. It was there that he received his early education. At the age of fifteen he removed to Newburgh, where he held a position as clerk in a dry goods store for two years. He then entered the employment of his future father-in-law, Joseph A. Bonnell, a prominent dry goods merchant of that place.

Several years later he removed to New York city, where he engaged in the same line of business, becoming a member of the firm of Whittaker, Dorr & Chandler.

Selling his interest in the business, he came to Middletown where Mr. Bonnell had entered the coal and lumber business, and remained with Mr. Bonnell until the latter's death.

For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Chandler have conducted a boarding house in this city, and for a time conducted a large summer boarding establishment near Suffern, Rockland county.

Mr. Chandler was married Feb. 23, 1847, to Miss Sarah Bonnell, who survives him. One child died in infancy.

The funeral will be held from his late residence, Friday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in Hillside Cemetery.

Miss Laura Draper.

Friends in this city have received information of the death of Miss Laura, daughter of Edward and Mary Draper, at Prescott, Arizona, on July 30th.

Miss Draper will be remembered by many Middletowners as a bright little girl, who was born in this city and removed to Arizona, a number of years ago.

She had just reached the age of sixteen, when life to a young girl is sweetest; when the future was bright with roseate hues and she had experienced none of the cares and sorrows that fall to the lot of mortals who have passed beyond the period of youth.

THE CONTRACT SIGNED.

Jacob Gunther to Have Charge of the Restaurant at Midway Park.

The contract by which Mr. Jacob Gunther is to have charge of the restaurant at Midway Park, was signed this morning by Vice President M. J. Wightman and Mr. Gunther. This gives Mr. Gunther exclusive control of the sale of eatibles, drinks and cigars in the park, and the police regulations.

Mr. Gunther obligates himself to sell nothing of an intoxicating nature on the grounds, and those who know him are aware that he will live up to his agreement. The fact that he will have control of the police regulations ought to satisfy anyone that no one else will be permitted to sell intoxicants in the park.

Mr. Gunther will fit up the restaurant in first class style. He has purchased a handsome soda fountain, and has contracted with Smith & Van Duzer for the furniture and china.

The contract is for one year with the privilege of five. Although the season will be short this year, Mr. Gunther will be able to form a good idea of the amount of business that can be done.

Meeting of Democratic Ward Committees.

The Democratic Ward Committees of the several wards will meet this (Wednesday) evening, at the place where they held their last primary meeting, at 7:30 p. m., for the purpose of selecting two inspectors, one poll and one ballot clerk for each election district in each ward. The lists of those selected should be handed to the Mayor for his approval before Aug. 10th.

D. B. SWEENEY, Chairman.
TIMOTHY MONGAN, Secretary.

A Wagon Collapses in the Street

A party of five city boarders drove to this city from Bloomingburgh, this morning. On John street, near North, while the horse was walking leisurly along, two wheels of the wagon collapsed. Fortunately the horse was a gentle one and stopped at the word of command, and the wagon settled down so slowly that none of the occupants were thrown out.

Forced a Prompt Settlement.

Two Saugerties youths while driving near Kingston, Monday, knocked down a child that was playing in the road. The child was not hurt in the least and it was by no means certain that the young men were to blame, but the father of the child seized their horse by the head and would not let them go their way until they paid him $10.

To Cleanse the System

INCIDENTS AND HAPPENINGS IN COSHEN.

Came from the Heavens, but Went to Albany Penitentiary—Colored Choral Union Concert—Stamboul at Hartford—Not Proof Enough of Guilt—School Matters—Personal and Other Notes.

From Our Regular Correspondent

—Mr. "Full" Moon, who described himself as coming from the heavens, was before the police justice, today, charged with vagrancy, being drunk and disorderly, practicing clairvoyance and being a general nuisance. He was given four months in Albany to study the stars from a cell in the penitentiary.

—Wednesday evening, Aug. 22nd, is the date set for the concert of the Colored Choral Union, at Music Hall. The only original black Irishman will take part in the entertainment.

—Stamboul is going quarter-mile dashes on the Hartford track in thirty-one seconds. He will be in fine condition for the Goshen races.

—The young man who was arrested, yesterday, charged with stealing a bicycle at Middletown, was discharged by Justice W. D. Mills, as he thought the proof was not strong enough to hold him.

—The Goshen and Montgomery ball teams will play at the Goshen Driving Park, to-morrow.

—The Board of Education held its annual meeting, last evening. About $10,000 was fixed as the amount necessary for the expenses of the village school for the coming year.

—The annual election for school trustees is being held, to-day, at the old school building. The candidates are W. D. VanVliet and Joseph Merritt. Dr. Jas. C. Coleman refused to serve another year.

—Mr. A. V. D. Wallace is spending a couple of weeks at Lewbeach, Sullivan county.

—A man with a combination of musical instruments made anything but sweet music on the streets, this morning.

IN ANCIENT GOSHEN.

Effects of the Drought—An Improvement on South Street—A Modern Good Samaritan.

From a special correspondent

—The effects of the drought are very perceptible in Goshen. Wells and cisterns are low, lawns brown and parched and gardens yielding but little.

—To those who live on South street it is a relief to see that the gulley that used to be in the road, just where the place for filling the water cart has been arranged, has been filled up with crushed stone. No humane person could see the struggles of the horses attached to the water cart to drag that heavy vehicle from that mud hole without feeling sympathy for the poor animals, and without being glad to think it has been made easier for them.

—It has become a habit with a great many to refer to days long gone by as the "good old times." It is natural enough for persons as they grow older to think of the immediate past as the best time of all. Youth has a way of glorifying both places and friends, and of course there are not quite as nice people or as good times as those we used to know and enjoy; but a few hundred years ago, or even within the last century, it certainly seems as though people were much harder and less human than they are now. Instead of stretching individuals on the rack and tormenting and maiming them with various other instruments of torture that must have cost their inventors much thought and ingenuity, modern science has directed its efforts to making the execution of condemned criminals as painless as possible, and the death penalty, instead of being inflicted for comparatively trifling offenses, is now reserved for the murderer. All this was suggested by the writer having been told, a short time since, that one of the Goshen legends is to the effect that a poor man was once hung in our village for stealing a flannel petticoat wherewith to protect his wife from the bitter cold of winter, and then reading in one of yesterday's newspapers of a destitute and desperate man, who tried to snatch a pocketbook from the hand of a lady in New York and, being too weak from starvation to accomplish his object, was arrested. When the lady found that it was his first offense, that he had a family and a helpless father to support, that he had been unable for weeks to find work and that he had in his possession pawn tickets for every article he possessed, she not only refused to appear against him, but she and her husband have supported the family ever since. One cannot help but wonder whether that man regrets the "good old times." G. H.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d. N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."
—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

LOVE COULD RULE THE WORLD.

If 'ove could rule the universe,
How changed would all things be!
He would reserve in language terse
All laws in his decree.
No rank could ever intervene
To stay affection's course.
'Twould bow its head with lowly mien
Before his gentle force.
The earth would be so bright,
The radiant sun
Would shed its warmth and light
For every one.

A king might then a peasant wed,
An empress love her page,
A seamstress with a princess bred
Might throw her winsome gage.
Sweet sentiment would rule the earth,
With banner high unfurled,
And happiness no more a dearth,
Could love but rule the world.
How happy all would be,
An Eden vale
Again the earth would see,
Could love prevail.

TOWNLEY'S HEIR.

There are a few Philadelphians living who still remember the "Fourteen Chimneys," a noted city landmark dating back to the Revolution. They were recognized in the old directories thus: "Sam. May, oysterman, No. 5 Fourteen Chimneys." They stood on the west side of Fifth street, above Race, and extended from the southwest corner of Mulberry alley south to the present No. 223, now an ink factory. In fact, the back part of this establishment is the only portion of the building left, and this was a part of the Ettris mansion, belonging to a curious family who owned much of the land thereabouts and noted for eccentricities in dress and opinions. There were in all eight houses, and they had been built to fit the chimneys, as these were much higher than the two story dwellings. These stood back from the street and had gardens in front from which the neighbors were supplied with vegetables.

The principal industry here in early times must have been butchering, as layers of bones, cattle horns and heads are turned up when the street has been opened. In 1818 one of the most respected residents of the "Fourteen Chimneys" was a Miss Rachel Barron, a bright mulatto who had been left a small fortune by a member of the Biddle family, whose servant she had been for 20 years.

Miss Barron was very charitable and did much good in aiding the poor, who were plenty enough in the numerous courts and alleys of that vicinity, and it is in this connection that our story begins.

In 1806 a man named Richard Vane Townley was living in Philadelphia. He was an Englishman, handsome in appearance, with polished manners and pleasing address. He had many friends, as it was reputed that he came from an excellent family at home, but there was a mystery about his means of living. He always had plenty of money, dressed and lived expensively, so it was supposed that he had an income from property in England, but all this was dissipated by the report that he had been principal in a duel at Saratoga Springs; that the alleged cause was a quarrel at the card table, and that the courteous, stately Englishman was in effect a professional gambler.

When this was known, it affected Mr. Townley's position in society adversely, but card playing was a recognized industry in those times and carried no popular odium with it, and that gentleman still seemed to prosper.

When he came to Philadelphia, his companion was a boy about 15, who was his only child, the mother being dead. James was a delicate lad, but gentle, and he was put in a private school and much liked by his associates, but his father, mindful of the vicissitudes of his profession, bound James to Benjamin Jones, at the southeast corner of Second and Chestnut streets, to learn engraving, and this he did, becoming a good workman. His father, however, supplied him with too much money, and he ceased to work, became unsteady and finally dissipated. When left without resources by the death of the elder Townley, he was forced to go to work at his trade.

Richard Townley left nothing to his son, but before dying he confided to a well known member of the old bar certain papers and told that gentleman the story of his wasted life.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century Apley Park, in Shropshire, now one of the show places of England, was owned by Sir Edmund Foster. It had once belonged to the Lucys of Charlicote and came to the Fosters by marriage. Sir Edmund had two sisters. One married a Devonshire rector named Childs, the other Philip Maley Townley of Shrewsbury. Both Mr. and Mrs. Townley died early, leaving an only son —Richard Vane Townley.

Richard was adopted by his bachelor uncle, Sir Edmund, and was sure to enter on an inheritance of £12,000 per annum, but he was wild and reckless and was sent away from Oxford in disgrace, and for a time forbidden to appear at Apley Park. Sir Edmund was getting quite infirm and much controlled and influenced by his housekeeper, Mrs. Darby, who had been in the family from girlhood. She interceded for Richard, and he was finally restored to favor and came back to the park, only to get into a fresh scrape. Mrs Darby had a niece staying with her, a very beautiful and good girl, and with her Richard fell madly in love, and failing to get her on less honorable terms persuaded her to elope and get married.

The aunt had been away on a visit and returned to find her niece gone. Suspecting the worst, she at once informed Sir Edmund of his nephew's new delinquency and had him send for his lawyer. A new will was made and probated in favor of Richard Townley.

Shortly after Mrs. Darby learned the truth and found that she had succeeded in ruining her son-in-law, but was too afraid to let the master know the real facts, as he was intensely loyal and would regard the misalliance as more flagitious than the supposed seduction.

Mr. Scrope of Shrewsbury was the family solicitor, an upright gentleman, who had known Townley's father, and he persuaded the baronet to make his will as follows: Mrs. Childs, his niece, had the property for life; then her children by senority inherited, and then heirs male, and failing them or issue the son of Richard Townley to inherit in fee. As there were nine of the Childs children, James Townley's chance of gaining the inheritance his father had forfeited seemed very remote.

Sir Edmund died, leaving a large personal estate in addition to Apley Park, and the Childs entered into possession.

James Townley had no force of character and was, moreover, improvident and careless, and he added to his responsibilities by marrying a very pretty young woman, named Cray, who was a seamstress in one of those one storied shops on Eighth street, below Sansom. Each did their best to make a living, but the husband's health failed, and then poverty came. Mrs. Townley was delicate and could do little to support the household, now increased by the birth of a sickly boy.

Rachel Barron had known the elder Townley and nursed his son when ill with a fever, and she came forward, took the stricken family to her own home at the "Fourteen Chimneys" and cared for them. The husband was then dying from quick consumption and the wife failing in health, and both were in effect paupers.

In the month of March, 1827, a small, thin man, evidently English and looking very much like a ferret, came to see James Townley. He was, he said, a friend of his father's and had but recently heard of the son's affliction. He talked sympathetically, left several dollars and promised to call again, and this he did several times, always giving Mrs. Townley money.

Rachel watched him closely and became very distrustful. Mrs. Townley had told her something of her husband's history, and after many injunctions to do nothing until she returned the resolute Rachel paid a visit to the late Richard McCall.

He heard her story indifferently, but advised that Mrs. Townley should sign no papers without letting him know of it. The woman hurried home, and entering the house heard some one talking up stairs. She went at once to the Townley's room and peeped in. Two men were at the bedside. James, propped up by pillows, had before him on a piece of board a paper, and his wife had just placed a pen in his feeble hand. On the table was a pile of notes and gold.

With a rush the mulatto grabbed the paper, almost upsetting both men, who turned on her fiercely.

"Be careful what you're doing, woman. That is a legal document that Mr. Townley has received money to execute, and I'll hold you responsible for damages."

"All right! This yer is my house. You get out and take yer money with you. We ain't signing anything today."

And the men were resolutely hustled down stairs. In an hour after Mr. McCall and his clerk came walking in and heard the story.

"Let me see the paper. Ah, yes, a shrewd scheme to get Townley to convey his right to a magnificent estate for $250. We are just in time, it seems."

Townley was almost unconscious, but he lived long enough to know that he was the owner of Apley Park. This freak of fortune came about in this manner.

Mrs. Childs' husband died before the baronet, and she was the head of the family. Shortly after coming to Apley Park the eldest son broke his neck in the hunting field and was brought home dead. His elder sister was in Germany, and her mother received a letter telling of her sudden illness, and with several children, a maid and a man attendant started at once to cross the channel, posted through France and got safely to Germany, and with two carriages was driving along the Rhine, when the bank gave way and all were precipitated into the river, and the maid and postilion alone escaped. Thus the Childs family was extinguished.

The attorney for the heir lost no time in communicating with Mr. McCall, apprising him that one of their clerks had sailed for America, and that his errand was to make some arrangement for his own benefit with the new heir and to warn that gentleman at once.

Thanks to Rachel Barron, no warning was needed. James Townley died two months after hearing of his good fortune, and his wife, attended by Rachel, started for England. Inside of two years both the widow and son died. Rachel married a very respectable white man in the neighborhood, moved to Brighton and kept a hotel there, much frequented by Shropshire people. Her property here was looked after by Richard Vaux, who was also a patron of her hotel at Brighton. She died in 1855, quite wealthy.

The Foster family again came into ownership of Apley Park, and it is now one of the most beautiful places in England.—Philadelphia Times.

THE TEST MISAPPLIED.

But Another Trait of Human Nature Stands Revealed.

The mighty Sheik Abdullah spake one day to the court sage, old Enekazi, as follows. "You are always ready to give sensible advice, Enekazi. Perhaps you could tell me which of my councilors are really sincere."

"A very simple matter," replied the sage confidently. "I will tell you at once, mighty sheik, how that is to be managed. Go and compose a long ballad this very day."

"So," interrupted the sheik. "You forget that I am no poet."

"That's just it, mighty sheik! Go and write at once a long ballad and read it to your assembled councilors."

"But, Enekazi, bear in mind that I never wrote a line of poetry in my life."

"So much the better. When you have read the long ballad to your courtiers, you will judge of the effect yourself. Tomorrow I will come again and learn the result of your observations."

Next day the wise Enekazi entered the sheik's tent, saying.

"Did you follow my advice, mighty sheik?"

"Certainly."

"And what happened after you had read your ballad?" inquired the old man, smiling.

"Oh, I was completely taken by surprise. One exclaimed that this was the long sought for ballad of the great poet Ibu-Yemin; another that I was a new bright luminary in the firmament of poetry; a third craved permission to cut off a small piece of my robe in memory of the eventful occasion and the immortal bard—in a word, they all were in ecstasies and praised my ideas and my language up to the skies."

"And what about old Heri-adin?" eagerly questioned the sage.

"Ah, he dropped to sleep while I was reading."

"Ha, ha! What did you conclude from that, mighty sheik?" said the old man triumphantly.

"What conclusion could I come to," replied the sheik with some surprise, "if not the same as all the rest—namely, that I possess very great talent for poetry?"

Enekazi salaamed, lighted his chibouk and—held his peace. For he was, in south, a wise man.—Fliegende Blatter.

A Stickler For Etiquette.

Talleyrand, like most diplomats, was famous for his attention to the details of etiquette. He prided himself on an ability to adjust his mode of address to the rank and position of the person to whom he was speaking.

On one occasion, when a number of distinguished men were dining with him, he varied his formula when inviting them to partake of beef in such a manner as to suit the rank of the respective persons.

"May I have the honor of sending your royal Highness a little beef?" he asked a prince of the blood.

To a duke he said, "Monseigneur, permit me to send you a little beef."

"Marquis," he continued, "may I send you some beef?"

"Viscount, pray have a little beef."

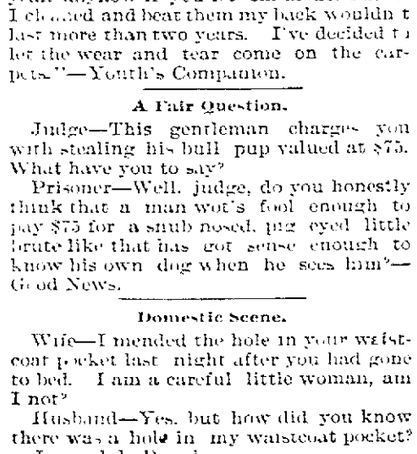
"Baron, do you take beef?" ran the next interrogation.

"Monsieur," he said to an untitled gentleman, "some beef?"

To his secretary he remarked casually, "Beef?"

But there was one gentleman left who deserved even less consideration than the secretary, and Talleyrand poising his knife in the air, favored him with a mere look of interrogation. If this guest was possessed of an independent spirit, one can imagine that he did not take beef that day.—Life's Calendar.

Too Easy.



Lady (who finds all the bathing houses occupied)—Never mind. I'll come back later on.

Attendant (putting his eye to a knothole)—'Old on, mum, 'ere's a lady almost ready to come out.

Lady decides she won't occupy that house.—Pick Me Up.

Household Economy.

"Have you taken up your carpets this spring?" asked one neighbor of another.

"No. I don't take them up. I've reckoned it this way. Carpets will last 10 years anyhow if you let 'em alone, but if I ch—ned and beat them my back wouldn't last more than two years. I've decided to let the wear and tear come on the carpets."—Youth's Companion.

A Fair Question.

Judge—This gentleman charges you with stealing his bull pup valued at $75. What have you to say?

Prisoner—Well, judge, do you honestly think that a man wot's fool enough to pay $75 for a snub nosed, pig eyed little brute like that has got sense enough to know his own dog when he sees him?—Good News.

Domestic Scene.

Wife—I mended the hole in your waistcoat pocket last night after you had gone to bed. I am a careful little woman, am I not?

Husband—Yes, but how did you know there was a hole in my waistcoat pocket?—Journal de Douai.

Her Winning Ignorance.

She—I see by the paper that the Vigilant is very slow in stays.

He—That is so, but what about it?

She (musingly)—I was wondering whether she would be any faster if she took them off.—New York World.

Uses of Summer Schools.

Little Brother—What are these summer schools that folks talk about?

Little Sister—Oh, they are places where schoolteachers go every vacation to study up so we won't get ahead of 'em.—Good News.

An Unpleasant Position.

"Had you a good place at the theater last night?"

"A wretched one. I sat next to my tailor."—Truth.

SHOTS HERE AND THERE

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

What Wrecked This Man's Life?—The Ways of Our Italian Population—How They Get Their Mail—Their Thrifty Habits

"Say, friend, do you ever take a drink of liquor?"

Looking at his questioner the Middletowner, thus strangely accosted upon a public street, saw before him a man well stricken in years, without coat, and otherways shabbily clad. It needed no second glance to perceive the man had been drinking, although neither his speech nor his gait advertised it.

Without pausing for an answer, the old fellow went on: "You'll excuse me, sir, but the fact is I have been drinking for eight days, am penniless and just about dead for want of a glass of beer."

"Well!" exclaimed the Middletowner, "how on earth could a man of your years,—why you must be seventy-five if you are a day,—stand this sort of thing for eight days?"

"As to my age," was the reply, "you're under the mark. As to my standing it, why I couldn't if I was a steady drinker. The craze for the stuff is not always with me; it comes on by spells,—sometimes once in six months, and then again, thank God, I am free of it for a whole year. But come it has, and come it will, and there's no help for it, until the end."

The was a momentary pause in the speech of the much to be pitied old chap, during which the man he was petitioning for the wherewith to slake his awful thirst, eyed him curiously and sadly. Apparently divining this, he straightened himself up to what was left of the one time dignity of his stature, and said: "But you mustn't think, sir, I have always been a wreck. Not so; I am respectably born, and though you may not credit it, I graduated with distinguished honors from Union College."

It may have been all wrong, but the wherewith for the beer was forthcoming.

What wrecked this life? Was it a weak will? Was it disappointed ambition? Ah, perhaps it was unanswered love. Who knows?

Middletown has quite a large Italian population at this season of the year, and it is an interesting sight to see them get their mail at the post office. The Italians are great letter writers, and the number of letters that they send and receive is very large. No post office clerk can get the least idea of what an Italian's name is like from hearing it pronounced, and the attempt to pick out letters to match the names as pronounced by the Italians was long ago abandoned, and now when a party of Italians appear at the delivery window, (and it may be said that they seldom if ever appear alone), all the Italian letters are laid down and they pick out for themselves those that belong to them, chattering like magpies all the time, apparently discussing the correspondents of their countrymen and wondering who the writer of this or that letter may be. The Italians, none too scrupulous in other matters, seem to look upon letters as sacred, or else make it a point of honor to not take those that do not belong to them, for although this system of letting them sort their own mail has been in vogue for many years, there has never been a complaint from one of their number of a misappropriated letter.

The Italians send a great deal of money out of town. They are a very thrifty people and have got cheap living down to such an exact science that the waste food of the average American family represents more in money cost than the total expenditures for food of half a dozen able bodied Italian laborers. A loaf of rye bread will last an Italian a day and a half, and it does not occur to him that he needs other food while he has bread. On Sunday, a few bones, a few scraps of meat, no matter how stale, furnish him materials for a luxurious repast. Italians have no use for vegetables, if they have to buy them. If they can get them without buying them, they relish every vegetable that grows. They do not waste much money on clothes, and every Italian is his own laundryman. Their only extravagance is beer and this they purchase by the keg, the whole colony "chipping in," and when beer is bought by the keg it is possible to get a great deal of beer for a little money. Living as they do, Italians save nearly all the money that they earn and they make haste to bank it against the day of their return to sunny Italy. They have no faith in national banks or savings banks but have the most implicit faith in the Italian "bankers," who abound in Mulberry street, New York, and to them, after paying their remittance surplus funds, while other people of foreign birth, the Italians do not make use of money orders in transferring money, but instead send the cash in registered letters.

Population of the State Hospital.

According to the Conglomerate there were, Wednesday, 1,051 patients in the State Hospital, in this city, of whom 717 were males and 334 females. During the week four patients were admitted and six discharged.

UMPIRE M'CARTER'S DECISION

No Occasion for the "Roasting" Given Him in the Press's Account of the Cuban Giants' Game.

Some of the crowd had courage enough to hurrah for "fair play," and the extreme quiet that hung over the crowd showed plainly that there was a sneaking knowledge of 'Mac's" miserable steal. * * *

A few more days of umpiring like that of Monday, and the writer will prepare an obituary of the Asylum Base Ball team from a financial standpoint.

Such games are unfair to patrons of the game. Men who have placed little bets on a team on its merits do not propose to go very often if their racer is "put in a pocket.—Press.

It is wonderful what an effect the loss of a wager of one whole new cigar (price and quality not stated, presumably "twofers,") will have upon the temper of the Press's base ball scribe.

Such language as the above is entirely uncalled for and we believe wholly unmerited. Mr. McCarter has been the official umpire for the Asylum Base Ball Club for the past three years, and during that time has won a reputation for fairness scarcely equalled by league umpires. He was highly complimented by both the New York and Brooklyn teams, and in the games played with those clubs he was called upon to make many close decisions.

He may make errrors (who does not?) but we believe them to be errors of judgment and not caused by any desire to "steal" games for the home team, and the fact that home players are frequently displeased with decisions which he makes against them, should be proof enough of this.

At any rate, it is manifestly unfair for a spectator occupying a ground perch in the shade of the right foul flag, to even question the ruling of the umpire, whose decisions are made while standing within a few feet of the players, and above all, he should think twice before accusing a man of perpetrating a "miserable steal."

THE ASYLUM BALL CLUB.

Its Record for 1894—Fifteen Victories and Four Defeats.

According to the Conglomerate the Asylums have played nineteen games this season, of which they have won fifteen and lost four, the latter as follows: Cuban Giants, 6 to 5; Flushings, 8 to 5; Waldens, 12 to 1 (at Walden); Cooperstown, 10 to 7. In the nineteen contests the Asylums scored 194 runs, while their opponents were able to score but 89.

Only three clubs scored double figures against them, the Waldens, the Indians and the Cooperstowns.

The only club shut out was the Murray Hills, the so-called "amateur champions of New York city."

TEMPTING FATE.

Boys Who Play Smart With Electric Cars.

Some vigorous steps should be taken to put a stop to the "smart" boys who run in front of electric cars. Last evening several boys amused themselves and terrified passengers by lying down across the track and waiting until the car was within a few feet of them before getting out of the way.

If one of the boys had been killed there would have been a general outcry against the "deadly trolley," and probably the motorman would have been arrested.

The boys of Middletown should be taught a lesson before a serious accident happens.

Orr Brothers Secure a Newburgh Paving Contract.

Newburgh's Common Council, last night, awarded the contract for paving Front street, that city, to Orr Brothers. The pavement is to be granite blocks, laid on concrete, the spaces between the blocks to be filled with melted asphalt. The price is $3 29 per square yard. Mr. E. A. Brown, of this city, representing the Hastings Pavement Co., made a bid for paving the street with asphalt blocks.

Sullivan County's Next Murder Trial.

District Attorney Hill of Sullivan county expects to try Hiram Osterhout, indicted for the Bushville murders, at the Oyer and Terminer, which begins at Monticello, on Sept. 10. If the Judge consents to hold a two weeks' term, the first week will be devoted to civil business, and the murder trial will begin Sept. 17 It is reported that Hon. A. C. Butts, of New York, will assist R. R. Jelliff, in the defence of the prisoner.

Verdict of Suicide in the Nightingale Case.

Coroner Decker, last night, concluded the inquest in the death of George Nightingale at Burnside. The jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by his own act, while laboring under a temporary aberration of mind.

Hood's Cures.

"I deem it a duty as well as a pleasure to give my testimony in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured my night sweats, kidney trouble and indigestion. My husband also had catarrh, but since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla he seems entirely cured."—MRS. W. S. OSTERHOUT, Newburgh, N. Y.

WASHINGTONVILLE'S BURGLAR ARRESTED.

A Former Resident, Who Recently Removed to Brooklyn, Now in Newburgh Jail.

Jacob Guirittie, a German, aged 50 years, was arrested in Brooklyn, Monday, on a charge of stealing six guns from Rheinhardt Juenger, of Washingtonville. Nine guns were taken but six of them were found in a New York gun store, the proprietor of which identified Guirittie as the man of whom he had purchased them.

The prisoner was brought to Washingtonville, yesterday morning, given an examination before a justice and committed to jail to wait the action of the Grand Jury.

Guirittie is a carpenter and lived at Washingtonville until about two months ago when he removed to Brooklyn. About this time the guns were stolen. The man visited Washingtonville about the time of the burglary and it is believed he committed all of the numerous thefts in that village during the past year.

STOLEN HARNESS RECOVERED

The Harness Stolen from M. S. Askew of Fair Oaks, Found in Port Jervis—The Supposed Thief Arrested.

Mr. M. S. Askew, the Fair Oaks hotel keeper, accompanied by Constable Emmet K. Travis, of Circleville, went to Port Jervis, last evening, having been summoned by a friend, who informed him that he thought he was on the track of the harness which was stolen from his barn at Fair Oaks, one night last week.

The stolen property was found in the possession of Dennis Holbert, a resident of Port Jervis, and a portion of it was recovered at Sparrowbush where Holbert had sold it. Officers P. Collier and George Gailbraith, of Port Jervis, assisted in the capture. Holbert was brought to this city, this morning, and will be given a hearing before Justice Shaw, at Circleville, to-day.

DOINGS OF THE 24TH COMPANY.

Thanks for a Supper and Cigars—To Entertain Capt. Rockwell's Company from Scranton.

The regular monthly meeting of the 24th Separate Company was held at the Armory, last evening.

A vote of thanks was extended to the ladies who so thoughtfully prepared a supper for the company on its arrival home from State Camp; also to Private E. E. Emerson for cigars furnished on that occasion.

The company also voted to entertain Capt. Rockwell's company, of the 13th Regiment of Pennsylvania, on the occasion of their visit here at the opening of Midway Park, Saturday, August 25.

A committee, consisting of Captain McIntyre, Lieutenants Stivers, Sergeant Dugan, Corporal Nickinson, and Privates Rose, Barnes, Millspaugh and J. J. Smith, was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

It is expected that the Scranton company will arrive in this city by special train over the O. and W., on Saturday, August 25, about 10 o'clock, a. m., returning to their homes on Sunday morning.

The company will be quartered in the Armory, where cots or mattresses will be provided for them. Meals will be served in the supper room in the basement.

To Form a Veteran Corps.

Captain McIntyre has called a meeting of all honorably discharged members of the 24th Separate Company for Thursday evening of this week, for the purpose of organizing a veteran corps of the company.
